

EMILY JAKSCH

Speaker - Author - Coach

“How do I manage, engage and communicate with the Millennials in my workplace?”

Emily Jaksch is on a mission to help companies, CEO's, Business Owners and Leaders across Australia understand the generational differences in the workforce to break through the barriers and assist organisations to create the next generation of millennial leaders.

Throughout her 20-year background in Human Resources working as a HR Strategist and Leadership Coach Emily has seen the frustration companies face when they haven't attracted the “right people” and feel the limiting effects of a poor team culture.

During the past decade as a business owner with her own HR Consultancy and Recruitment Agency Emily has felt the exact same frustrations, and understands that most CEO's and Business Owners are sick of dealing with “people issues” instead of focusing on their core business. The single topic on everyone's minds:

“What is the best way to deal with the Millennials in my organisation?”

Emily has had hundreds of desperate Managers and Business Owners contact her about the “entitled and unreliable” Millennials disrupting their business. And with Millennial's set to make up over two thirds of the Australian workforce by 2025 this issue is not going away any time soon.

On a quest to develop leadership programs that actually work for the Millennial generation Emily embarked on her own research project, surveying over 1,000 Millennials (born 1981-1995) to find out what they want in terms of career progression, and what their motivations and attitudes are towards work. This ground-breaking study challenges the popular portrayal of Millennials in an endeavor to truly understand Generation Y.

In Emily's keynote address and latest book “Are Millennials the Most Misunderstood Generation of Our Time” Emily shares the incredible research findings, dispels many of the Millennial myths, and will give you fresh insights on how your business can thrive working with the Millennial generation.

Emily is a highly regarded speaker and author. A talented award-winning HR Strategist, Master NLP communicator and motivational educator.

Degree qualified (BComm) and a certified professional member of the Australian Human Resource Institute Emily has worked across many industries, for large international companies including The Royal Bank of Scotland, Australia's icon GM Holden, and giants Wesfarmers and Coles.

Emily's no nonsense, humorous and straight talking approach enables her to deliver the message that everyone needs to hear about managing the Millennial “virus” in your organization!

BOOK NOW to have Emily Jaksch speak at your next event

Popular Keynote Topics:

- Managing the Millennial Virus in Your Workplace
- Help I've hired a Millennial – How to recruit and retain Gen Y's
- Millennial bashing – the sport of a nation – Millennial Myths busted
- State of the Nation - The Australian Millennial Workplace Study

BOOK EMILY NOW

1300 959 560

www.emilyjaksch.com

info@emilyjaksch.com